

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An apparatus generally comprising a plurality of processors, a trace circuit, and a connector circuit. The trace circuit may be configured to present information at a port for debugging software in a selected processor of the processors. The connector circuit may be configured to (i) couple the trace circuit to the selected processor in response to a select signal and (ii) transfer the information from the selected processor to the trace circuit while the selected processor is executing the software.